

Impairment Recognition and Response Training for Supervisors

- Opportunity for employers located in PA to receive the training for free
- Timeline: grant period ends in December 2024
- Sign up: nsc.org/pa
 - Employees will sign up individually via the webform on this page

FREE Workplace Impairment Training for Your Company

If your company is located in Pennsylvania, employees are eligible to complete NSC Impairment Recognition and Response Training for Supervisors at no cost to your company, even if you have remote employees that reside outside of Pennsylvania. This training is available through a grant from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in partnership with the National Safety Council.

It's a one-hour eLearning course

Tested with real-world supervisors and safety professionals, the training covers:

- Why it's important to recognize and respond to impairment
- Supervisor responsibilities when recognizing impairment
- Common causes of impairment (alcohol, cannabis, fatigue, mental distress and more)
- Common signs and symptoms of impairment
- Six steps to respond to potential impairment

Take steps to keep employees safe

Workplace impairment can have many negative effects on workplace safety, employee wellbeing and your bottom line. Require your supervisors to complete this complimentary course so they can help you build a strong safety culture.

39%
of employers say impairment is causing more injuries

Learn More and Sign Up
nsc.org/pa

nsc
National Safety Council

1130255 0923 ©2025 National Safety Council

